IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

MARINE PRODUCTS WILL BE IN DEMAND NEXT WEEK.

Decided Drop in Price of Eggs-Bad Season for Fruits and Vegetables.

Dealers in marine products are anticipating an increase in their business next week, when Lent will begin and when meat is tabooed so many more days than during the ordinary business seasons. Some dealers are already making preparations for the prospective increase in their trade, and among other things are arranging to have an extra supply of oysters on hand for the Ash Wednesday trade. There is every prospect that fish will be more plentiful during the lenten season this year than usual and that the demand for oysters will be smaller. Oysters have been unusually plentiful all the winter on account of the open weather and, it is stated, people are getting tired of them. Fish have also been plentiful, but most of the winter stock was frozen and it was not until recently that the fresh-caught fish became sufficiently plentiful to supply the demand. The Potomac river is already supplying many fish for the local market and some fine specimens of the finny tribe are being received here from are furnishing some of the finest shad that local dealers have ever handled, and the best of them are selling at $1.25 each. These large roe shad weigh from six to eight pounds and dealers say they are equal to the fish that are caught in the Potomac river later in the season.

That the best way to reach the women was through personal work. It is very hard for them, she said, a people who worshiped so many gods, to understand the idea of one God. They think it very strange that they never heard of God before.

It is twelve years since Mr. and Mrs.

river later in the season.

"The water is much colder now than it will be later," a fish dealer remarked to a Star reporter today, "and the fish are naturally solid and fine. In my opinion they are better now than they are when the water many are the season."

While the best roe fish are thought to be high, the buck shad are to be had for 50 cents. Many persons regard them as being superior to the roe shad. Large white perch from the James river are selling at 15 cents a pound, and yellow perch are even cheaper. Rock fish are scarce, pan rock bringing 15 cents and boiling rock 30 cents a pound. Potomac bass are still being received in quantities large enough to supply the de-mand at 15 cents a pound. The catch of bass in the Potomac has been larger this spring than usual and the price has been correspondingly cheap. Frozen trout are still plentiful and cheap and there are enough of them in storage to prevent an appreciable increase in the prices of fish during the lenten season. Crab meat will also be in demand during the coming six weeks. Local dealers have been getting fresh picked meat during the past month and the shipments are liable to increase as the spring advances.

Price of Eggs Lower.

The decided drop in the price of eggs this week will probably have the effect of decreasing somewhat the lenten demand for marine products. Twenty cents a dozen is the market price for fresh eggs, some of the dealers asking as much as 23 cents for specials. Storage eggs are to be had for almost any price, hucksters offering them from door to door at as low as 15 cents a Similar eggs, it is said, were recently sold in Baltimore at the rate of two dozen for 25 cents.

"It is hardly likely that eggs will be much cheaper during the lenten season than they are now," remarked a local dealer to a Star reporter, "and it would probably be well for consumers to put in a supply large enough to last them ten days or two weeks

age and other inferior stock on hand; enough to hold down the prices for a short time. It is stated that the scarcity of the butter is due to several causes. Milk producers in the west, it is stated, have beer prosperous and are out of debt and they are not paying as much attention to the feed-ing and care of their cows as they did when times were dull and they were in out their cows because of the early soring weather and the animals are eating grass, weeds and everything else that is green

Fruits and Vegetables. This is a bad season for fruits and vegetables, and prices are generally considered high.

"Prices are not quite as high as they ecm," a dealer remarked today. "The trouble is that people of moderate means have been spoiled by cheap prices during recent years, and they think it terrible because they are charged a little more than usual. Years ago at this season of the year people were satisfied to get potatoes, cabbage and kale or spinach, but now they want tomatoes, cucumbers and vegetables such as only the wealthy were able to buy

Western celery is geting scarce and will soon be played out, but Florida stock has appeared and will fill demands until homegrown celery is to be had. Ten cents is about the average price of the Florida and western product this week. Tomatoes have not been as plentiful as usual this season, and they are now scarce and high, the best of them selling at 40 cents a pound. There has been a slight decrease in the price of Irish potatoes during the past week. Lettuce is still scarce and high, selling at 15 cents a head. Parsnips are 40 cents a peck, turnips 30 cents and oyster plant 8 cents a bunch. Florida oranges are no longer plentiful, but the California crop is fine and reasonable prices prevail, the fruit bringing from Charles Hell, thirty-one years of age, was treated at the Emergency Hospital yester-Strawberries are 50 cents a quart.

There has been no change in the retail prices of meats and poultry since last week. Fowls are not so plentiful and there has been a slight advance in wholesale prices, but dealers have not increased the retail

NOT THAT KIND OF BREAD.

Little Girl's Unexpected Comment on Uncle's Petition.

Perched in her high chair in the salle a manger of her residence on Columbia Heights, little Miss Luella Smith is a second edition of the autocrat of the breakfast table. Anything that seems to her in any degree inconsistent with usual table manners is noted by this little lady at the moment and she feels called on to admonish or correct without any hesitancy. Yesterday for dinner the cook served up among the other edibles a supply of fine hot biscuits. Her uncle who said-grace before the meal in his brief prayer petitioned that the Lord would "favor us with the bread of life." This did not seem to the fittle girl as exactly proper under the cirumstances, and she reminded him thus: "This is not that kind of bread, Uncle John; these are 'bickets.'" It was too late to amend the petition, however, and the family proceeded to partake of their dinner.

Jailed for Theft of Wheel.

William Flood, colored, a messenger boy, left his wheel at the curb on 7th street Wednesday morning while he delivered a message in a store. When he came out the wheel was gone. Late in the afternoon when he was going up Connecticut avenue horthwest, he discovered a colored boy riding the wheel, and called Policeman Davis of the third precinct, who arrested the col-ored boy. At the station house, the lad in ored boy. At the station house, the lad incustody gave his name as Fleming Whitley.

"Where did you get the wheel?" asked Judge Kimball, when the case was on trial in the police court yesterday.

"I bought it from a colored man, but I don't know his name," was the reply.

"Can you find him?"

"No sir, but a friend named Eddis saw me buy it."

When Judge Kimball sent to the place.

When Judge Kimball sent to the place where Eddis was supposed to live, it was found there was no such person. The court ordered Whitley's confinement in the District jail for nine months.

Boys Honor Washington's Memory. The boys of St. Patrick's Academy Wednesday afternoon gave a program appropriate to Washington's birthday anniversary. It consisted of the national anthems, patriotic songs, recitations and reading on the spirit of the holiday. The parts of the comic dialogue, "That Little Hatchet," were taken by Masters George Hill, Fred Thuee, Thomas Degnan and George Chambers, Quitman Beckley's reading "The Character of Washington" was declared to be good, and the drill by the fourth, fifth and sixth grades displayed great precision. Dr. Staf-ford made an address, after which the children were given a holiday until Monday.
